

SPECIFICATION

It's time to record some key information.

What are you designing and making?

---

Who are you making it for?

---

What must the product do or be? What need must the product meet? Does the product need to have any special features?

For example, if you are designing a toy car, you may decide that you want it to be able to travel on rough surfaces.

You may find it helpful to write your specification using bullet points.
